APRIL

Fr. Simon Sez

One motivating factor in people's lives is the need for money. People work to get the money they need for basic necessities and maintaining a certain standard of living. Some people work just for pay while others work for more than pay. They work in a human way out of loving service which brings personal fulfillment. They have their heart in their work. It is a passion for them. The workers fulfilling their hearts' desire are the most committed and most happy.

In the gospel proclamation for today (John 10:11-18), Jesus compares the work of a hired man who cares for sheep to his work as the Good Shepherd. The hired man runs away when the wolf comes. Jesus says, "This is because he works for pay and has no concern for the sheep." Again Jesus says, "I am the good shepherd, and I know mine and mine know me ... and I will lay down my life for the sheep." The motivation for Jesus is not pay, but love for the sheep he knows and love for his Father who knows him. Jesus received the command from his Father to be the Good Shepherd. Ultimately, his motivation is obedience to the will of God the Father.

What motivates you in your life filled with activities related to family, work, school, church, recreation, prayer, and service? Are you working just for pay or just for something to do? More importantly, are you working out of love of God and neighbor and obedience to the vocation call God has for you and discerning his will within your vocation commitment?

If we "see what love the Father has bestowed on us" (second reading, 1 John 3:1-2), then we will better realize that we are children of God. As his children, we realize that he is the one that sent us to live our lives out of love for him in all that we do but in a particular way.

God the Father calls each one of his children to make a vocational commitment such as marriage, religious, ordained, and single life. Each particular vocation provides the right motivation and purpose to all aspects of an individual's life which is their best path to holiness.

Pope Francis in this year's World Day of Prayer for Vocations message says this: "Let us be passionate about life, and commit ourselves to caring lovingly for those around us, in every place where we live. Let me say it again: 'Have the courage to commit!'"

These individual vocations are at the service of all. Pope Francis says this, "We are called to listen to one another and to journey together in order to acknowledge them and to discern where the Spirit is leading us for the benefit of all." Therefore, please pray for the Spirit of discernment for you to identify any young men that may be called to the priesthood. If you do, please pass on their name to a parish priest to forward to our diocese Vocation Office.

“God always wants our future to be bigger than our past.”- Matthew Kelly.

There is always room to grow. At the townhall meetings for our pastorate, we learned that the average age for a person to stop believing in God was 12 years old. As we are going through Set Ablaze, I thought it would be important to get the perspective of those that will carry on our Catholic faith, the children. I asked them, how can we help them grow in their faith? Their answers were sincere and gave me a feeling of hope!

Many of the students want to know more about the Eucharist and be more involved in the mass. They asked to have more time with Jesus in Adoration. They want to know more about the items used during Adoration and mass to better understand their faith. They would like to serve, lector, or be in a choir.

The students also feel they will grow in their faith by being a service to others. They would like to reach out to the poor in our community. They would like to visit with those that cannot get out on their own. They would like to give what they can to help their fellow man.

Finally, the students are VERY interested in the Bible. They would like to know it better. They want to become familiar with Bible verses. They want to reenact Bible stories to help others better understand. During the lunches, I read to the students. They have requested to hear Bible stories going forward.

What can we take away from this? Our youth is excited about their faith and they want to be involved. We are listening! At St. Joseph Catholic School, we will strive to meet the faith needs of our students.

“Thoughts create actions. Actions create habits. Habits create character.”- Matthew Kelly.

It is never too late to join our family at St. Joseph School! Come feel that love by taking a tour with some of our students leading you through the school! Applications can be found if you click on the QR code. If you would like to learn more about St. Joseph School, please click on the QR code.
